Chapter 1 by Anton Gustafsson

Remember when I was 12 and I thought going to the Underworld was the most dangerous thing I'd ever do? Or when I was 16 and thought one major war would end the struggle? Or when I was 17 and thought a second more dangerous war would end it? If only that were so. I'm Percy Jackson, and I'm 22 years old. I'm a bit stressed right now, so this may be brief, but I'm sorta kinda getting married in 15 minutes, so I'm sure you understand. See her name is Annabeth Chase. I met her when I was 12, and we started dating at the age of 16. My best man I also met at 12, and he's a satyr.

I knew I forgot to mention something! I'll try to make this not confusing but I'm the son of a 5,000 year old barnacle-encrusted god named Poseidon, like the greek god. Yeah, the gods are real. Deal with it. So they have kids with mortals. Annabeth is a daughter of Athena, my half-brother Tyson is a cyclopes, Grover is a satyr like I said, and I have an awesome pet pegasus named Blackjack. The Roman gods are also real by the way, and according to Annabeth she has a cousin named Magnus who is the son of some Norse nature god named Frey. Egyptian gods are also a thing. To explain it all I'd be here for years, so let's cut to the wedding.

When I went up that aisle, and I saw Annabeth in her beautiful dress, I was truly, completely happy. Happy that I turned down immortality. Happy that I admitted I liked her when I was 16. Happy I fell into Tartarus with her. I was happy.

The ceremony was pretty standard, except that some of the guests were 5000 year old greek gods. At least Athena finally approved of me. The reception on the other hand, was pretty wild. Dionysus was treating everyone to handcrafted wines, Poseidon accidentally made a saltwater geyser, and Hephaestus released some mechanical doves that went haywire and landed in the cake.

Anyway, when me and Annabeth were about to leave for the honeymoon, disaster struck like it always does.

Chapter 3 by blueramp

It was our night before the honey moon we were at our room packing and annabeth was very exited! she was checking the luggages and then doing research on Bali,yeah thats were we where planning go because we were so tired of this greek,hero,gods,minotaur...etc....(especially i was tired annabeth was planning to go to greece i didn't wanna go there it was my idea to go to bali indonesia...far....far away)then annabeth started planning were to stay and the transport,luxury...etc...but i was just thankfull because the marriage went well.....i was so..stressed out before the marriage that if i miss inviting any god for the wedding the ending result will be big it can make them angry,(and you know what will happen)no one knows how i made athena approve for the marriage well that's a another story...before the marriage grover had given me a bachellor party it was a crazzzy night....people were high on nectar there were lots of satyrs,demigods,fury's(i don't know who invited them),and there were humans too except..they can't see through the mist.

Now we were all set for the honeymoon tomorrow,We were about to go to bed...then suddenly we got a message...

Chapter 4 by Harbour Nolan

It was Thanatos he said to me "Honey" Percy said disappointingly. "We're going to try to find our way out of the underworld."

"I even would have gone to Greece, but the last place I wanted to spend my honey moon was the under world" Annabeth said

"Relax its not that bad" Percy said "Who am I kidding". Suddenly Thanatos appeared "Come quick" he said. He lead them to Nico who was collapsed on the ground and was more pale then ever, even more pale then when he was in the glass jar in Rome. And suddenly Percy collapsed too.

Chapter 5 by E.A.Beauregard

"Percy!" Annabeth screamed. She checked his pulse. It was faint, but it was there. "He needs water," Annabeth said. She took out the water bottle she had packed for herself and dribbled the water into his mouth. Slowly, his eyes opened.

"Wh- What h-happened?"

"You collapsed!"

"Ah, Welcome," boomed a voice. "Oh, it's my nephew and grandnephew. What brings you here?"

"We've come for Nico," Annabeth said.

"Ah, but Nico is my son, and he likes it here!" The voice replied.

"No, I don't," says Nico in a hoarse voice.

"Since when?"

"Since forever! I thought you knew! I mean, there's no reception, you won't let me plug in my laptop anywhere, and the skeletons make horrible jokes!"

"Out," the voice finally said in a quiet voice. "Out, out, out! All of you!"
